RYANN

“ Before I came to Pace I was skipping school every day, and had given up on my academics. I also had no voice for myself. When I first started at Pace, I thought it would be like any other school. I was pleasantly surprised when I was greeted with not just a school but a family. Pace helped me find my confidence and voice once again. I am forever grateful for all the opportunities Pace has given to me and all the girls.

“What sets Pace apart is it's not like it's a magic wand where bullying goes away, and trouble goes away, and problematic attitudes go away because they're still teenage girls and they still have these life experiences that they're trying to deal with. What makes Pace different is the fact that the teachers, the staff, the counselors, and the therapists are all trained to support children a different way.
